

We call this "Telephone Pictionary".
We need to become friends.
We play a game called drunk driving.
We play the exact same rules.
We don't need to know what you do.
We finished school.
We all lost it.
We go for a hike in the park.
We fly kites and try to take aerial pictures,.
We go to the library.
We try to learn something interesting and try new hobbies.
We are making the best of it.
We used to have a variation of this at my college.
We sometimes put chairs in the path of the blindfolded person.
We just pick a topic.
We do a lot of free things.
We had drinking rock-band.
We do this but you can only use one hand to drive your cart and one hand to drink, and you can't finish the race with a full beer.
We used to play at uni.
We did it every time we had club events at the uni.
We go about a mile in 3-4 hour.
We do this at least once a weekend and it's fun cuz each time we meet new people.
We place a bet to see where we'll end up being.
We played a variant of that.
We once drove into the ghetto.
We play.
We play a bunch of other games and everyone gets shitfaced.
We ended up calling it Prostitution.
We go out and play for few hours.
We live in apartments.
We always played at night in residential neighborhoods.
We use distilled beaver blood.
We did everything from hop fences and go through yards, to hopping into the yard behind and walking completely around the block.
We usually had to do a variation of army crawls, rolling across streets, and dodging and hiding and ducking into pine trees.
We like to set up something about 50 - 100 meters away.
We have to try and hit.
We did this recently and it was great fun.
We were kids.
We typically go in the basement where there is a lot of space and nothing we can break.
, we play camera tag.
We find endless amounts of enjoyment in this.
We played it at my college a few times.
We switch up in teams of two and we all start out with something small, for example a teabag.
We used to play a game where a group of us would go to the mall.
We also play pretty complex board games.
We all own bikes.
We get downtown.
We plan on continuing this idea with other themes.

We actually have no name for this game.

We ride bikes to the animal shelter and pet kittens.

We play Ninja.

We visited every stop on the Metro, found the closest bar, and had a drink there.

.